Throat-Bass: the low octave! w Backtrack's Andrew Kim

Feb 11 @ 11:00 am – 12:00 pm

Throat-bass is a vocal technique common to both Tuvan overtone singers and beatboxers. Using this approach, singers can generate a pitch which is one octave lower than a typical bass's lowest sung notes. Some feel the sound is reminiscent of the Mongolian region while others feel the sound is more akin to electronica and dub step. Whatever your connotations, there is no doubt that this unique style adds a wealth of potential expression and power to any group.

Andrew John Kim is an A Cappella Producer, Recording Engineer and Arranger from New York City. Andrew received his Bachelor of Music in Music Composition from Northwestern University and his Master of Music in Film Scoring from New York University. At Northwestern, Andrew was a founding member and three-year Music Director of the a cappella group, Extreme Measures. He currently directs and produces for the contemporary a cappella group, Backtrack, which has amassed over 6.5 million views and 75,000 subscribers on YouTube over the course of 4 years. In the summer, Andrew arranges for and directs at the Camp KO A Cappella Program at Kingswood Oxford School.

Synchronize – methods for blending and intonation

Feb 11 @ 4:30 pm – 5:30 pm

Christian Ronsfeld is a leader in the European a cappella scene. One thing that's a constant in both the US and Europe is the instruction from judges to "work on your blend". That's part of achieving excellence in a cappella. We all know it's true, but for many groups -especially student-run groups, getting great blend is a mystery. Sometimes it happens sometimes not. Let Christian take the mystery away with a series of fun rehearsal techniques that will get all your voices to sound truly unified.

Creative Vocal Lab-Advanced Vocal Improv w/ Evan Feist

Feb 12 @ 12:00 pm – 1:00 pm

Take a step forward with your improv. It's time to fine tune your short form improvs and embrace long form/non-loop explorations. As always, you can take these tools back to your group to spice up your sets, your composing and your arranging through spontaneous creation. You can even open for your own group with an improv set!

Evan Feist has performed, arranged, directed, and coached a cappella music for more than a decade. As the founder of the Creative Vocal Lab, Evan has been working with singers of all ages to build their skills improvising original songs and spontaneously arranging pop songs in both small and large ensembles.

He's earned two Master's degrees from Columbia University, Teachers College, a MusB from the Purchase College Conservatory of Music and runs the audio production company, Stacks of Wax.

In 2015, the New York Musical Theatre Festival presented him with the "Outstanding Arrangements" award as well as "Outstanding Musical Direction" award for his work in A cappella:the musical.

Evan has helped create more than 15 middle and high school a cappella groups and continues to serve as a teaching artist at AMDA, SUNY Purchase, Rye Arts Center, and the Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center. As a staff arranger and clinician at A Cappella Psych, Evan has been able to develop a unique style of arranging that incorporates honest emotional storytelling through the use of improvisation. Currently, Evan has a private studio of over 30 students, whose field of study ranges from songwriting to voice study, producing to directing. Evan has worked with NBC's "The Voice" and "America's Got Talent." Ever the student, he continues to study the craft with Rhiannon, WeBe3, UCB, Bob Stoloff, and Bobby McFerrin.
